Who We Are

Edoofa was founded in 2017 with a simple belief: higher education should build careers, not just secure admissions.

Most players in international education focus on getting students into colleges. Edoofa focuses on what happens after. We take ownership of the entire journey, admissions, scholarships, mentorship, employability training, internships, and international career pathways. Education, for us, is not a transaction. It is accountability for outcomes.

Today, Edoofa is the largest and most trusted higher education platform in the Africa-India corridor. More than 7,000 students from Zimbabwe, Zambia, Malawi, South Africa, Ghana, and other African nations have joined us. Over 65% of enrollments come through alumni referrals. That number matters more than any marketing metric. It reflects trust built through results, not promises.

Edoofa's foundation was laid long before 2017. In 2009, Avreen and Angad Singh started Anhad Edutrain Solutions Pvt Ltd, which became a decade-long proving ground. Over the years, the team partnered with 200 plus Indian universities, worked with institutions and ministries, and ran employability initiatives at scale. There were experiments, failures, resets, and breakthroughs. What never changed was the conviction: higher education must be affordable, outcome-driven, and transformative. Anhad was the proving ground. Edoofa is its enduring expression.

Why Africa

Africa sits at the center of Edoofa's long-term opportunity.

The first phase, the Rs 10 to Rs 100 crore journey, is already underway. Today, Edoofa enables approximately 1,000 African students a year to access Indian higher education through a fully owned admissions-to-employability model. Over the last five years, the average ticket size per enrollment has grown from approximately Rs 50,000 per student to Rs 1,00,000 per student last year. With new university contracts and employability integrations now in place, we expect this to grow to Rs 1.5 to 2 lakhs per student over the next 2 to 3 years. Scaling this proven engine to 5,000 to 6,000 enrollments annually takes Edoofa to the Rs 100 crore milestone, not through experimentation, but by compounding what already works.

The next phase, Rs 100 to Rs 500 crore and beyond, is where the opportunity becomes structural.

Africa has a population exceeding 1.4 billion, a median age of approximately 19, and fewer than 2,000 institutions capable of delivering higher education with real employability outcomes. The gap between aspiration and access is enormous and growing every year. Solving this is not about incremental expansion. It requires building a new model of higher education and coaching, delivered closer to students, adapted to local realities, and integrated with global career pathways.

This is the journey from bringing Africans to India first, and then taking quality, outcome-driven Indian education to Africa itself.

Few problems are harder. Fewer still matter more.

Why Build at Edoofa

Edoofa is not built for people looking for entitlement, safety, or predictable ladders.

If you are looking for a good brand name to sit inside quietly, Edoofa is not for you. If you are looking for a place where entitlements come before ownership, Edoofa is not for you.

But if you want to build something that matters, with speed, responsibility, and a mission big enough to scare you, this is one of the rare places where you can grow faster than any structured career path will allow.

At Edoofa, we hire Dukaandaars — people who treat their role like a business. That means you do not get handed comfort. You get handed a problem. And if you solve it, you earn trust, responsibility, and growth at a pace most careers do not offer.

The Earning Upside Is Real

Edoofa rewards top performers disproportionately. The starting package is only the entry point. For the highest-ownership Dukaandaars, the trajectory looks like this:

- 2X compensation by Year 2
- 3 to 4X by Year 5
- For a small number of exceptional builders, a genuine chance to earn their first crore and even their first million dollars in the next 3 to 5 years as the company plans structured liquidity opportunities for the very best performers

The Chance to Be a Founder Without the Risk

Many of our early team members grew into Dukaandaars, scaling verticals, building systems, creating impact, and proving that Edoofa is not just a workplace. It is a launchpad for builders.

Edoofa offers something increasingly rare: the chance to be a founder of your own high-performance career. A founder without the financial liability of starting up on your own. A founder without the uncertainty and lack of resources, capital, or ideas. A founder of your own financial freedom.

This is not a placement. It is not a safe first job. It is an arena for builders.

Equity and ESOP

Performance-linked equity participation through Edoofa's ESOP pool, reviewed on the basis of Management Trainee period performance. This is not a standard joining benefit. It is earned through the quality of what you build here

Profile 1 of 5

Tech, Data & Systems Lead

Positions	1
MT Stipend	Rs 75,000/month (June 2026 to July 2027)
Post-MT CTC	18 LPA Fixed
Trajectory	Tech & Data Leadership, CTO Understudy, Equity Eligible

Is This You?

You are in your third year and you have already built something real. Not for a grade, not for a hackathon, but because you saw a problem and could not leave it alone. It is live. People use it. You have more ideas than you have time for.

You are not looking for a safe first job. You know what you are capable of and you are looking for a place that will give you real problems, real ownership, and real stakes from day one. You do not have the capital, the network, or the platform yet. But you have the ability, the drive, and the proof.

If that is you, read on.

Why This Role Exists

Edoofa today runs on WhatsApp conversations, manual data entry, Google Sheets, Python scripts, and systems held together by institutional knowledge. That works at our current scale. It will not work at 2x or 3x.

The next two years are about building infrastructure that lets the team handle significantly more volume without adding proportional headcount. Shifting tech from something that supports manual work to something that replaces it.

The person in this role will own that infrastructure. Not maintain it. Own it. They will inherit a working system, learn every piece of it, and grow into the person who leads it. A senior tech leader will come in alongside them to accelerate that development.

What You Will Own

From Day One

- Run and maintain daily reporting pipelines. Python-based WhatsApp chat exports generate team performance reports every morning, and accuracy, completeness, and timing are your responsibility
- Own lead management across three sources: Facebook campaigns, website, and WhatsApp referrals. Clean data, correct allocation to the sales team, nothing falling through
- Manage the AI-based audit system that flags missed follow-ups, broken communication chains, and at-risk accounts across departments

- Maintain all Google Sheets and data systems the company runs on. Fix errors, resolve inconsistencies, build trackers when needed
- Manage all tech subscriptions and infrastructure: Google Workspace, Wati, AWS, Facebook Campaigns, deployed scripts, active domains
- Drive CRM adoption across departments as Phase 1 goes live. Become the institutional memory for how everything connects

Within 6 Months

- Build and maintain automated communication workflows, covering acceptance letters, report card generation, payment receipts, and compliance documents
- Identify manual, repetitive workflows across every department and build lightweight solutions using Google Apps Script, AI Studio, and accessible tools
- Become the day-to-day product counterpart to our CRM development partner. Drive Phase 2 and Phase 3 from the inside, not as a coordinator but as an active participant ensuring what gets built is what the business actually needs
- Evaluate and pilot new tools tied to specific operational problems, including WhatsApp Group API, LLM-based solutions, and interview recording infrastructure

The 2-Year Vision You Are Building Towards

- WhatsApp conversation automation, with scripted follow-ups, reminders, and nudges running without human intervention
- CRM auto-update from conversations, so manual data entry is eliminated
- AI layer on CRM, where patterns are surfaced, at-risk students are flagged, and high-conversion leads are identified without anyone manually reading through records
- Automated reporting across every function, giving leadership visibility without anyone pulling numbers

What This Role Demands

We are not looking for someone to hold the fort. We are looking for someone who hunts. Who walks into a department, sees a process leaking time or money, and comes back the next morning with a solution already built. Not flagged. Built.

The reports that this role generates drive decisions for 50 plus people every day and affect the journeys of thousands of students across seven African countries. The CRM this role helps build will be the primary source of truth for a company targeting Rs 100 crore revenue. The automation this role creates will determine whether Edoofa can scale without proportional headcount growth. That is the weight of the work.

Average output here has real consequences. Mediocrity is not a skill gap. It is a choice to protect yourself from full effort. We have seen what that looks like. We are not hiring for it.

Who Will Thrive Here

Someone who gets obsessed with broken processes before being asked to fix them. Someone with extreme data discipline, because accuracy is not a preference here, it is the baseline. Someone who finds satisfaction in a system running quietly and correctly at 7am rather than someone who needs external recognition to stay motivated. Someone comfortable with a wide, ambiguous charter where not every answer is handed to you. Someone who treats this role like their own Dukaan within Edoofa, hunting for problems, not waiting for them.

The early Dukaandaars who now lead Sales, Growth, Student Affairs, and Services at Edoofa all started with this exact mindset. They did not inherit leadership. They built it.

What You Need to Bring

Must Have

- B.Tech in Computer Science, IT, or related field, 2027 batch, CGPA 7.0 and above
- At least one live product currently in use by real users, with a public GitHub repository. Not a college project submitted for marks, not a dummy website, not a prototype that no longer runs. Something alive today that solves a real problem for real people
- Solid Python fundamentals, meaning you can read, debug, and modify scripts confidently
- Advanced Google Sheets covering dashboards, complex formulas, pivots, and data validation
- Working knowledge of Google Apps Script, Python automation, or API integrations
- Familiarity with CRM systems or WhatsApp Business API
- Genuine daily usage of AI tools such as Gemini, ChatGPT, or similar, not awareness of them, active usage

Where This Role Leads

Three paths open naturally for the right person over 3 to 5 years.

Tech and product leadership at Edoofa. If you build what this role is meant to build, you become one of the most critical operators in a company scaling toward Rs 100 crore and beyond. Equity comes with that ownership. The financial upside compounds with the business, not just with your salary.

High-growth and serious tech roles outside. The profile you will have built here, owning a full tech and data function, managing a CRM of this complexity, building AI automation at scale for a live business, is exactly what product and engineering roles at high-growth companies are looking for. You will have done things at 23 that most people in tech take a decade to get near.

Your own startup, with us backing you. Edoofa's founders back people they have seen build. If at year 3 or 4 you want to start something, that conversation starts with us. We have watched your work up close. We know what you are capable of. That is a different kind of investor than someone reading your pitch cold.

How to Apply

Submit a 2-minute video covering two things: the problem your live product solves and why it needed to exist, and how you built it, what decisions you made, what broke, and what you learned. Along with your video, share the GitHub link to the repository and the live link to the product. Applications without a live product, a public GitHub repository, and a video will not be reviewed.

Post-MT CTC	Grade A: 15 LPA Fixed Grade B: 10 LPA Fixed
Reporting	Founder's Office, Direct access to CEO
Trajectory	Business Intelligence, Operations Leadership, Equity Eligible

Is This You?

You are in your third year and you are sharp. Not just in code or coursework, but in the way you read situations. You notice things others miss. You can sit with a large volume of information and find the pattern inside it. You are not the loudest person in the room but you are often the most observant.

You have been consistently excellent, in school and in college, not because you were told to be, but because you do not know how to do things at half measure. You want to be close to how a real business operates, not as a spectator but as someone whose work actually moves things. You do not need the glory. You need the consequence.

You are also someone who can be trusted with things that are not yours to share. You will see sensitive information every day in this role. That information stays with you.

If that is you, read on.

Why This Role Exists

A company that cannot see itself clearly cannot scale. At Edoofa, hundreds of conversations happen every day across Sales, Admissions, Launchpad, and Student Services. Each one carries signals about what is working, what is breaking, where revenue is being lost, where students are being failed. Most of it goes unread.

The Founder's Office Intelligence function exists to change that. These three people are Edoofa's eyes and ears across its three sub-businesses, building the visibility layer that the CEO uses to manage, correct, and accelerate the company.

The outputs of this work land directly on the founder's desk and drive decisions across departments.

The Three Sub-Businesses You Will Cover

Each of the three positions maps to one sub-business. Assignment happens post-selection based on fit and aptitude.

Sub-Business A, Sales Intelligence

The enrollment engine. 20 plus counsellors having approximately 2,000 WhatsApp conversations a day with prospective African students. The highest volume, the fastest-moving pipeline, and the highest consequence for conversion.

The Sales Intelligence officer reads, scores, and patterns daily chat output, identifying compliance gaps, pitch deviations, missed closure opportunities, and training needs. The goal is not just to report what happened. It is to surface what the sales leadership needs to act on today.

Sub-Business B, Admissions Nurturing Intelligence

Two departments, one student population. KAM Admissions Mentors and Launchpad Coaches both work with African Edoofians who are enrolled but not yet in India, approximately 2,500 to 3,000 active accounts at any time, generating 800 to 1,000 chats per day.

The Admissions Nurturing officer audits the quality of these relationships, not just response times and protocol compliance, but whether conversations are actually moving students toward arrival and generating referrals through the Launchpad community program. Relationship quality matters as much as process adherence here.

Sub-Business C, Services Intelligence

Three departments working on students already in India: DSA handling campus student affairs, EWYL running employability training and project management, and CDC providing jobs and internships. Approximately 2,000 students across multiple intakes.

The Services officer covers the broadest scope, including WhatsApp audit, recorded training sessions, process compliance, project delivery tracking, test scores, and student progress data. The most varied daily work of the three positions.

What the Daily Work Actually Looks Like

This role is 90% reading, scoring, and reporting. If that sentence interested you, read on. If it did not, this is not the right role for you.

Every day you will read a significant volume of real conversations between Edoofa's team and students. You will score them against rubrics and protocols that you will help refine over time. You will identify patterns, what is working, what is failing, what is being missed. You will compile reports that go directly to the CEO and department heads.

You will also be called on for things outside your defined scope. A Founder's Office person at Edoofa does not say that is not my job. They figure it out, complete it, and move on. The breadth of what you might be asked to do in any given week is part of the role, not a deviation from it.

Over time, as the audit systems mature, your work shifts from pure reading to pattern recognition, system refinement, and training input. As you develop a deep understanding of each sub-business, you will also begin identifying workflows that can be partially or fully automated. The strongest performers in this cohort will grow into systems builders, not just systems operators.

Why This Work Is Serious

- You will see more of Edoofa's operational reality than almost anyone, every conversion, every dropout, every objection pattern, every gap in execution, before the leaders of those departments see it themselves
- Your reports directly influence how department heads are managed and what gets corrected. You are not feeding a dashboard. You are feeding decisions
- You will work directly with the CEO to build audit systems from the ground up. What you help design will outlast your MT period and become the institutional framework those departments run on
- Reading 200 conversations a day with a trained eye is a skill. One that builds business judgment, pattern recognition, and operational fluency that most people in their twenties simply do not develop
- When a pattern you identify changes how a department operates, you will see it happen. That feedback loop is rare at any level. At 21, it is extraordinary

Because of the nature of this role, discretion is non-negotiable. You will regularly encounter sensitive performance data, business strategy, and information about people inside and outside the company. That information does not leave the Founder's Office. Ever. This is not a policy. It is a condition of the role.

Who Will Thrive Here

Someone who finds genuine satisfaction in mastery over visibility, who would rather be the person who actually knows what is happening than the person who presents what is happening. Someone with an obsessive eye for detail, who reads a conversation and notices the moment it went wrong three exchanges before the student went quiet. Someone who can sustain sharp attention across high volumes of similar material without losing accuracy. Someone who is always open to doing whatever needs to be done, who does not wait to be asked twice and does not have a narrow view of what their job is. Someone humble enough to do unglamorous work consistently and clear-eyed enough to know what that work builds toward. Someone who can be trusted, completely, with information that is sensitive and consequential.

What You Need to Bring

Must Have

- B.Tech from the 2027 batch, any stream with strong analytical coursework. CGPA 8.0 and above. 90% or above in both 10th and 12th
- Exceptional written English, you will read and write extensively every day and the quality of your output reflects directly on the Founder's Office
- Working knowledge of Google Sheets covering formulas, data entry, and basic dashboards
- Active daily usage of AI tools such as Gemini, ChatGPT, or similar as part of your regular workflow
- The ability to sustain focused attention across high volumes of material without error accumulation
- Genuine curiosity about how sales, admissions, and student management operations actually work
- Demonstrated discretion, you are someone people trust with things that matter

Good to Have

- Any exposure to quality review, compliance checking, or structured evaluation work, even in an academic context
- Basic Python or scripting ability
- Interest in building systems rather than just operating them

Where This Role Leads

As Edoofa builds its department leadership layer, the audit functions these three people run will transfer to those departments. The people who built and ran those systems become the natural candidates to lead or advise them. The strongest performer in this cohort will have a natural path toward the tech and data systems function, working alongside the Tech, Data & Systems Lead and contributing to the AI and automation layer being built across the company.

Beyond Edoofa, the profile this role builds is genuinely unusual for someone in their early twenties. Deep operational knowledge of a scaled business, experience building intelligence systems from scratch, direct access to founder-level decision making, and a demonstrated ability to find signal in noise. That profile opens doors in business operations, strategy, and growth roles at serious companies.

The Founder's Office is not a permanent posting. It is accelerated exposure to how a whole company works. What you do with that exposure is up to you.

Academic Consultant - Sales

Positions	12
MT Stipend	Rs 35,000/month + Uncapped Incentives (June 2026 to July 2027)
Post-MT CTC	Grade A: 12 LPA Grade B: 10 LPA — both with Uncapped Incentives
Trajectory	Sales Leadership, Revenue Ownership, Equity Eligible for Top Performers

Is This You?

You are the person in your batch who can walk into a room full of strangers and leave with three new conversations going. You are competitive, not in a way you need to hide, but in a way that drives you. You want to earn and you are not embarrassed by that. You know that the fastest way to grow is to be in a role where your output is visible, measurable, and directly rewarded.

You also care about people. Not as a skill you have developed. As something that comes naturally. You listen before you talk. You read a conversation and know where it is going before the other person does.

You are looking for a role where both of those things, the hunger to win and the ability to connect, are not just welcome but required.

If that is you, read on.

Why This Role Exists

Edoofa's growth from Rs 10 crore to Rs 100 crore is not a marketing problem. It is a conversation problem. Every student who joins Edoofa does so because someone on the other end of a WhatsApp chat or a phone call helped them believe it was possible. That someone is the Academic Consultant.

You are the first person a prospective African student speaks to. In many cases, you are the person who determines whether a family in Zimbabwe, Zambia, or Malawi takes the most consequential financial decision of their lives. Your conversations are not transactions. They are turning points.

We are hiring 12 people for this role now.

What You Will Own

- Own the complete student enrollment journey from first contact to final payment. Every lead that comes to you is an account. You are responsible for it from the moment it arrives to the moment the student is enrolled and handed to the KAM team
- Prospect smartly. Research, identify, and reach out to high-potential students. Not every lead is equal and knowing the difference early is a skill this role builds fast
- Have daily high-energy conversations that blend empathy with persuasion across WhatsApp, calls, and video. Volume matters here. So does quality. Both are tracked

- Maintain relentless follow-up and pipeline discipline across a large volume of active leads simultaneously. The ability to hold 80 to 100 conversations in various stages without anything slipping is what separates good counsellors from great ones
- Understand blockers. Every student who does not enroll has a reason. Emotional hesitation, financial anxiety, parental resistance, logistical confusion. Your job is to understand the real blocker, address it with clarity and confidence, and move the student forward
- Track your own metrics, sharpen your conversion game, and close with precision. You will know your numbers every day
- Collaborate with the Admissions and KAM teams to ensure clean handovers post-enrollment. A student who enrolls and then feels lost is a referral that never happens

What This Role Demands

This is a numbers on the board role. Your output is visible every day. There is no place to hide and no reason to want one if you are the right person.

The best counsellors at Edoofa have become some of its most important leaders. They did not get there by being adequate. They got there by being obsessive about their craft, about understanding why students say no, about finding the phrase that turns hesitation into commitment, about building a reputation in a market where referrals are everything.

Mediocrity is not a skill gap. It is a choice to protect yourself from full effort. We have seen what that looks like. We are not hiring for it.

Who Will Thrive Here

Someone who is energised by conversations, not drained by them, who can do 30 high-quality interactions in a day and still be present on the 31st. Someone with a competitive streak that is self-directed, who checks their own numbers before anyone asks. Someone who listens to understand, not just to respond, because the ability to find the real objection underneath what a student says is what closes enrollments. Someone who takes ownership of their pipeline completely, who does not wait for leads to be chased on their behalf. Someone ambitious enough to want to grow into leadership and clear-eyed enough to know that this role is where that growth starts.

Many of Edoofa's most senior people started exactly here. They did not inherit their positions. They earned them through consistent, high-ownership performance in this role.

What You Need to Bring

Must Have

- B.Tech from the 2027 batch. CGPA 6.0 and above with 70% or above in both 10th and 12th. Students who do not meet the academic criteria but have completed a non-technical internship with demonstrated client or customer-facing experience are eligible to apply
- Strong spoken and written communication in English
- The ability to manage a high volume of simultaneous conversations without losing quality or attention
- A genuine competitive drive and comfort with being measured on outcomes daily

Good to Have

- Any prior experience in sales, counselling, customer service, or client-facing roles
- Familiarity with CRM tools or lead management systems
- Experience working with or for international clients or students

Where This Role Leads

At Edoofa, the Academic Consultant role is the entry point to the revenue engine. The people who own that engine are among the most valuable operators in the company. Top performers grow into Team Lead and Sales Manager roles with significantly higher fixed compensation, variable incentives, and eventual equity participation as Edoofa scales toward Rs 100 crore. The trajectory is proof-based, not time-based.

Beyond the CTC, the Dukaandaars who have built Edoofa's revenue engine have earned disproportionately. Top performers have the opportunity to 2X their compensation within years, 3 to 4X it over longer horizons, and for a rare few, participate meaningfully in equity events that can change their financial life. If at year 3 or 4 you want to start something, that conversation starts with us. We have watched your work up close. We know what you are capable of. That is a different kind of investor than someone reading your pitch cold.

Profile 4 of 5

Admission Mentor - Key Accounts Management

Positions	4
MT Stipend	Rs 35,000/month (June 2026 to July 2027)
Post-MT CTC	Grade A: 12 LPA + 3L Variable Grade B: 10 LPA + 3L Variable
Trajectory	KAM Leadership, Admissions Operations, Student Relationship Management

Is This You?

You are the person people come back to. Not because you were the loudest in the room but because when you said you would do something, you did it. You build trust quickly and you hold it carefully. You are structured in the way you think and relentless in the way you follow through.

You are not looking for a role where you close and move on. You want to own a relationship from beginning to end, to be the person a student and their family remember as the one who actually got them there.

You are also comfortable with targets. You understand that relationships and results are not opposites. The best relationship managers are also the best closers, because trust is what converts.

If that is you, read on.

Why This Role Exists

Enrollment is not the finish line. It is the starting gun.

When a student in Zimbabwe pays their registration fee, they have made a bet on Edoofa and on the person managing their account. Between that moment and the day they land in India, months pass. Documents need to be collected. Offer letters need to be processed. Fees need to be paid. Visas need to be arranged. Families need to be kept informed, reassured, and moving forward.

Every student who drops off between enrollment and arrival is revenue lost, a referral that never happens, and a family whose bet did not pay off. The Admission Mentor exists to make sure that does not happen.

This is the highest-accountability role in the admissions process. You own the account. You own the outcome.

What You Will Own

- Take full ownership of each enrolled student's admission journey from interest to arrival. You are the single point of contact, the person the student calls when they are confused, worried, or stuck. That accountability does not transfer

- Drive monthly admission conversions by ensuring students submit documents, receive offer letters, and complete fee payments on time. These are revenue milestones and you are responsible for every one of them across your entire portfolio
- Build long-term relationships with students and parents across calls, WhatsApp, and video sessions. A student who trusts you moves faster, pays on time, and refers others
- Understand blockers, emotional, financial, and logistical, and help students move forward with clarity and confidence. Convert interest into commitment through structured follow-ups and strategic nudges that keep momentum without creating pressure
- Align student aspirations with appropriate programs, universities, and scholarship options. Collect and organise documents, guide SOP writing, and ensure strong, accurate applications
- Own a personal admissions pipeline, track every student's movement, and stay one step ahead. Handle objections, resolve queries, and proactively manage delays or drop-offs before they become withdrawals
- Clearly communicate the total cost of education covering tuition, travel, accommodation, and living expenses. Guide families through payment plans and push for fee milestones while maintaining a relationship of trust throughout
- Align student and parent expectations with Edoofa's offerings and timelines. Motivate students to stay committed, attend Launchpad and EWYL sessions, and complete the journey
- Handle escalations with ownership. Coordinate with internal teams covering Visa, Services, and Sales for timely resolution of issues
- Assist students with documentation for visa processing and pre-departure formalities. Coordinate travel readiness, cultural briefings, and university onboarding
- Maintain updated records of student journeys, conversion progress, and issue logs. Share weekly reports on status, red flags, and fee collection

What This Role Demands

You will manage 80 to 100 active accounts simultaneously at peak. Each one is a person with a family behind them and a timeline in front of them. Nothing can fall through.

The metrics that matter here are conversion rate, pipeline progression week on week, contact rate and follow-up quality, revenue realisation through timely fee collection, and student satisfaction and retention through the journey.

The best Admission Mentors at Edoofa are both warm enough to hold a relationship through six months of uncertainty and structured enough that nothing in their pipeline moves without them knowing why.

Mediocrity is not a skill gap. It is a choice to protect yourself from full effort. We have seen what that looks like. We are not hiring for it.

Who Will Thrive Here

Someone who builds genuine trust quickly and holds it through a long, complex process without losing energy or attention. Someone who is structured about their pipeline, who tracks every account and knows its status without being asked. Someone comfortable with emotional conversations, because financial anxiety, family pressure, and cold feet are daily realities in this role and they require empathy and firmness in equal measure. Someone who closes through consistency and clarity rather than pressure. Someone who takes full ownership of their accounts and does not pass problems upward until they have genuinely exhausted what they can do themselves.

What You Need to Bring

Must Have

- B.Tech from the 2027 batch. CGPA 6.0 and above with 70% or above in both 10th and 12th. Students below the academic threshold with a non-technical internship involving client or customer-facing work are eligible to apply
- Strong spoken and written communication in English
- The ability to manage a high volume of simultaneous relationships without losing quality, attention, or accuracy
- Comfort with being measured on conversion targets and revenue milestones every month

Good to Have

- Any prior experience in counselling, account management, customer service, or client-facing roles
- Familiarity with CRM tools or pipeline management systems
- Experience working with international clients or students

Where This Role Leads

The Admission Mentor role is the deepest account ownership role in the company. Top performers grow into KAM Team Lead and Head of Admissions roles with significantly higher fixed compensation, variable incentives, and eventual equity participation as Edoofa scales.

Beyond the CTC, the Dukaandaars who have built Edoofa's admissions engine have earned disproportionately. Top performers have the opportunity to 2X their compensation within years, 3 to 4X it over longer horizons, and for a rare few, participate meaningfully in equity events that can change their financial life. If at year 3 or 4 you want to start something, that conversation starts with us. We have watched your work up close. We know what you are capable of. That is a different kind of investor than someone reading your pitch cold.

Social Media, Content & Growth — Founder's Office

Positions	2
MT Stipend	Rs 35,000/month (June 2026 to July 2027)
Post-MT CTC	Grade A: 15 LPA Fixed Grade B: 10 LPA Fixed
Reporting	Founder's Office, Direct access to CEO
Trajectory	Head of Marketing, Brand Ownership, Equity Eligible

Is This You?

You spend more time studying why content works than making content for the sake of it. You have an Instagram, YouTube, or LinkedIn presence that you built yourself, not for college credit, but because you had something to say and wanted to figure out how to make people listen. You know the difference between content that gets likes and content that makes someone take action. You have thought about that difference a lot.

You are not looking for a brand manager title. You are looking for a real problem to solve with real stakes. You want to be in a room where your output matters, where the founder sees your work every day, where growth is not a department but a daily obsession shared by everyone around you.

You are willing to do the unglamorous work. You will shoot, edit, caption, post, analyse, redo, and ship again. You do not consider that beneath you. You consider it the job.

If that is you, read on.

Why This Role Exists

Edoofa has 7,000 plus students from Zimbabwe, Zambia, Malawi, and other African countries studying at Indian universities. Over 65% of our enrollments come through alumni referrals. That number is both our greatest strength and our greatest vulnerability. It means we have built something students trust enough to recommend to their families. It also means we have not yet built a channel that finds students who have never heard of us.

That is the problem this role exists to solve.

Africa has a significant trust deficit when it comes to international education. Students and families have been burned by agents, false promises, and programs that did not deliver. Content that converts in this market cannot be generic. It has to be specific, human, and credible. It has to show real students, real outcomes, and a real organisation behind them.

The person in this role will build that channel from scratch. Not through paid acquisition. Through content that earns attention, builds trust, and eventually pulls students toward Edoofa without anyone having to ask.

What You Will Own

- Build and own Edoofa's social media presence across Instagram, LinkedIn, and YouTube. You are starting from a low base with a strong story. That is the best possible brief
- Create content that reaches African students organically. Distribution thinking is not optional here. It is the job
- Tell Edoofa's stories. Real students, real journeys, real outcomes. A student from Harare who arrived in India with nothing and is now interning at a company in Gurgaon. A family in Lusaka that bet everything on their daughter's education and won. These stories exist. Your job is to find them, shape them, and put them in front of the right people
- Create and post content consistently, a minimum of 3 to 5 pieces per week across platforms. You will write, shoot, edit, and publish. You will use what is available, Canva, CapCut, your phone, AI tools, and you will make it good
- Own the performance of every piece of content you create. Reach, engagement, follower growth, and eventually lead generation through content are your metrics
- Run growth experiments. Test formats, test hooks, test posting times, test platforms. Double down on what works. Kill what does not
- Support founder and employer branding. Angad's LinkedIn presence, Edoofa's employer brand, and the company's external narrative as we scale are also within your scope
- Support external communications when needed, including investor-facing materials, partnership decks, and campaign narratives. This is the stretch scope, not the day job, but it is available to someone who earns the trust and demonstrates the range

You will be measured on the quality of your output and eventually on whether that output generates leads. Engagement is a leading indicator. Lead generation is the north star. If your content is beautiful but no one from Africa is clicking through, you have not solved the problem.

The market you are creating content for has been lied to before. Generic content will not work. Borrowed formats will not work. You need to earn attention in a low-trust environment and that requires cultural empathy, creative discipline, and a willingness to keep iterating until something breaks through.

Mediocrity is not a skill gap. It is a choice to protect yourself from full effort. We have seen what that looks like. We are not hiring for it.

Who Will Thrive Here

Someone who has already made content that worked, not just content that existed. Someone who can watch a 60-second video and immediately identify why it worked or why it did not. Someone who is obsessed with distribution, who thinks about reach and resonance before they think about production values. Someone who will pick up a phone and film a student testimonial in a hostel corridor and edit it into something compelling the same day. Someone who takes feedback without defensiveness and iterates without losing energy. Someone who finds the founder's proximity genuinely exciting because they want to understand how a company is built, not just how a campaign is run.

What You Need to Bring

Must Have

- B.Tech from the 2027 batch, any stream.CGPA 6.0 and above with 70% or above in both 10th and 12th. Students below the academic threshold with a non-technical internship involving client or customer-facing work or exceptional Social media presence are eligible to apply
- A personal social media presence or content portfolio that demonstrates distribution instinct, not just creative ability. Show us something you made that found an audience
- Active daily usage of AI tools for content creation, research, and ideation
- Comfort with short-form video creation and editing using tools like CapCut, Reels, or similar
- Strong written English with the ability to write in multiple registers, from a student testimonial caption to a founder LinkedIn post to a campaign brief

Good to Have

- Any experience running a social media account for any brand or cause with measurable growth outcomes
- Familiarity with analytics tools across Instagram, LinkedIn, and YouTube
- Basic graphic design ability using Canva or similar
- Understanding of or genuine curiosity about African culture, student communities, or international education markets

Where This Role Leads

Edoofa's content channel does not exist yet in any meaningful form. The person who builds it owns something rare: a zero-to-one growth story in a market that almost no Indian company has figured out how to reach organically.

Within Edoofa, the person who builds this channel and demonstrates that content can generate leads becomes the head of marketing as the function grows. That role carries equity, budget ownership, and a team beneath it.

Beyond the CTC, the Dukaandaars who have built Edoofa's core functions have earned disproportionately. Top performers have the opportunity to 2X their compensation within years, 3 to 4X it over longer horizons, and for a rare few, participate meaningfully in equity events that can change their financial life. If at year 3 or 4 you want to start something, that conversation starts with us. We have watched your work up close. We know what you are capable of. That is a different kind of investor than someone reading your pitch cold.

Launchpad Coach — Community & Referral Growth

Positions	4
MT Stipend	Rs 35,000/month (June 2026 to July 2027)
Post-MT CTC	8 LPA (6 LPA Fixed + 2 LPA Variable)
Reporting	Head of Launchpad (BD & Growth Head)
Trajectory	Community Growth, Referral Engine Ownership, Equity Eligible

Is This You?

You are someone people open up to. Not because you pushed them to, but because you made them feel like it was worth it. You can walk into a room of strangers, and twenty minutes later you know who is hesitant, who is excited, and who just needs someone to tell them it is going to work out.

You are not chasing the highest package on this list. You know what you are getting into. You want a role where you are talking to real people about real stakes, where your energy and instinct matter more than your CGPA, and where what you build is visible every single day.

You are comfortable with unconventional hours. The students you will be working with are in Zimbabwe, Zambia, Malawi. They are available in the evenings. Some weekends. You are okay with that because you understand what the work is actually for.

If that is you, read on.

Why This Role Exists

Over 65% of Edoofa's enrollments come through alumni referrals. That number is not an accident. It reflects 7,000 students who trusted Edoofa enough to stake their family's reputation on it. But that trust does not activate itself. Someone has to nurture it.

The Launchpad function exists to do exactly that. It sits between the student who has enrolled and the leads who are still deciding. Its job is to turn satisfied students into active advocates. Not through pressure. Through genuine community, real conversations, and the kind of trust that makes a student in Harare call their cousin in Bulawayo and say: go.

Every referral that does not happen is a family that never got the chance. This role exists to close that gap.

What You Will Own

- Run Launchpad sessions for newly enrolled Edoofians. Your job in these sessions is not to present Edoofa. It is to make students feel seen, confident, and connected to something bigger than themselves. From that place, referrals happen naturally
- Build relationships with your student cohort across WhatsApp and video. Know who is nervous. Know who is excited. Know who has a younger sibling at home who is watching to see how this goes
- Identify students who are ready to refer. Convert that readiness into action through challenges, contests, and community moments that give them a reason to share
- Own your referral pipeline. Track which students have referred, who those referrals are, and what stage they are at. You are responsible for the lead, not just the conversation that created it
- Work directly with the Sales and KAM teams to hand over warm leads cleanly. A referral that arrives cold is a referral that was half-managed
- Create content from your sessions. Testimonials, short clips, WhatsApp stories. You are sitting on the most powerful marketing asset Edoofa has: students who made it. Use it

What This Role Demands

Your output is measured in referral leads generated and how many of them convert. Not in effort. Not in sessions conducted. In leads that turn into enrollments.

This is a people's role. That means it requires genuine energy, not performed energy. Students in this market have been sold to- before. They can tell the difference between someone who cares and someone who is going through the script. If you are the second type, this role will be hard and the numbers will show it quickly.

Flexible hours are not a perk here. They are a condition. Your students are in different time zones and on different schedules. You adapt to their availability, not the other way around.

Mediocrity is not a skill gap. It is a choice to protect yourself from full effort. We have seen what that looks like. We are not hiring for it.

Who Will Thrive Here

Someone who is genuinely energised by people, who ends a long day of conversations feeling more engaged, not more drained. Someone with the emotional intelligence to know what a student actually needs in a given moment and the discipline to guide them toward action anyway. Someone who takes ownership of their referral pipeline the way a salesperson takes ownership of their leads, because that is exactly what this is. Someone comfortable with the fact that this is the lowest fixed package in the handbook and confident enough in their own ability to make it the right bet anyway.

The Launchpad role is not a stepping stone to something more important. For the right person, it is the most important role in the company. Every enrollment this function generates is a family whose trajectory changes. That is the weight of it.

What You Need to Bring

Must Have

- B.Tech from the 2027 batch. CGPA 6.0 and above with 70% or above in both 10th and 12th. Students below the academic threshold with a non-technical internship involving community management, counselling, or client-facing experience are eligible to apply
- Strong spoken and written English
- Genuine warmth with strangers. This is not a skill you can fake at volume
- Comfort with flexible hours and student-led availability
- Basic digital literacy across WhatsApp, Google Workspace, and Canva

Good to Have

- Any experience in event facilitation, student communities, or peer counselling
- Familiarity with WhatsApp-based community management
- Basic content creation or testimonial capture experience

Where This Role Leads

Edoofa's referral engine is its most important growth asset. The person who learns to activate it consistently becomes the person who owns community growth as the function scales. That is a leadership role with real scope and equity upside as the company moves toward Rs 100 crore.

Beyond the title, the skills this role builds, trust creation at scale, community activation, referral conversion, are among the most transferable in any growth-oriented career. Sales, partnerships, community leadership. All of it starts here.

Beyond the CTC, the Dukaandaars who have built Edoofa's core functions have earned disproportionately. Top performers have the opportunity to 2X their compensation within years, 3 to 4X it over longer horizons, and for a rare few, participate meaningfully in equity events that can change their financial life.
